

Client	King Faisal University, Saudi Arabia	Project	New campus at Al Hassa
Principal	BT Al Saudia	Date	2009

Capitoline was commissioned to produce a report to consider the suitability of the space allocated for the new data centre to be built in the Administration block in the new campus at King Faisal University, Al Hassa campus. The potential to upgrade the old computer room in the old campus was also be considered. The existing 100m² computer room was audited against TIA 942 and other standards and an upgrade plan was developed. A design brief was prepared for the new 120 m² data centre being built in the new campus administration building and the correct space was identified in conjunction with the IT department and the University's architects and prime contractors.

New administration block being built and showing the designated data centre area

King Faisal University (KFU) is a public university with the main campus in the city of Hofuf in Al-Hassa, Saudi Arabia founded in 1975. KFU was initially established with four colleges: two in Dammam and the other two in Al-Hassa. KFU now has over 24,000 students.

